OUR HISTORY

First Dakota National Bank, Yankton, South Dakota is recognized as the first bank in the Dakota Territory. There were some private banks that existed before First Dakota was founded in 1871, but it is the oldest bank still in operation.

Pre-dating the gold rush era by a few years, the history of First Dakota National Bank is filled with many interesting stories. Early bank records show accounts for officers serving with General George Custer, who came to the Yankton area in the early 1870's. Other historic bankbooks show financial records of a long list of steamboats that traveled the Missouri River.

The bank was originally founded in 1869 as the banking house of Mark M. Parmer. It was established as the First National Bank of Yankton in 1871 and chartered under the laws of Dakota Territory on December 7, 1872. Its first president was Moses K. Armstrong.

For three decades, First Dakota grew and changed with the town of Yankton. In 1909, First National Bank of Yankton, under the leadership of William E. Heaton, purchased the Yankton National Bank. He also started another bank in town, The First Loan & Trust Company. Heaton stayed active in the business until 1929 when he merged his two banks together to form The First National Bank and Trust Company.

The Dakota National Bank was another bank started in Yankton in 1909. Once again Yankton had two national banks and business returned to normal. World War I came and went, with its inflationary boom and post-armistice recession. Both The Dakota National Bank and First National Bank and Trust Company weathered the stock market crash in 1929. In 1931, the two national banks consolidated, retaining the older charter. The surviving institution was officially known as the First Dakota National Bank & Trust Company. In 1940 the name was shortened to First Dakota National Bank.

After the mergers and acquisitions of recent years, the bank, which had assets of $38,810 when it was founded, now boasts assets exceeding $2.9 billion. First Dakota merged with American State Bank of Yankton and Vermillion in 1988; acquired McCook County National Bank of Salem in 1992; acquired First Federal Savings & Loan of Parkston and Wagner in 1995; started a new branch in Mitchell, SD in 1999; acquired Marquette Banks in Chamberlain and Kimball in 2002 and added a second office in Mitchell. In 2003, First Dakota expanded to the Sioux Falls market with two locations. 2007 allowed First Dakota the opportunity to join with another South Dakota tradition, Al's Oasis, as a new office was opened in Oacoma. This office closed in 2022. In 2010, First Dakota opened a new location on the east side of Sioux Falls. In 2013, First Dakota acquired Bank 360 in Beresford and Elk Point. In 2015, First Dakota acquired the Pierre office of Home Federal Bank, as well as the Pierre and Blunt offices of Dakota State Bank. A fourth Sioux Falls location was built in 2016. First Dakota National Bank, headquartered in Yankton, South Dakota, now consists of 17 banking locations in 12 southeastern South Dakota communities along with one loan production office in South Dakota and Iowa, and three in Nebraska.

GREATEST ACCOMPLISHMENTS

One of the bank's greatest accomplishments is the fact that we have helped many generations of families and businesses reach their goals and dreams. Another accomplishment is the way we have survived and prospered through years of drought, floods, blizzards, wars and financial hard times in order to serve our customers. We continue to offer our customers the benefits of the latest in banking technology with eStatements, Digital Banking, and Bank-to-Bank Transfers.

COMMITTED TO AG

Agri-business has been in our blood since we first opened our doors in 1872. And through every growing season since, we've been helping farmers to thrive in this unpredictable industry. It's that kind of commitment to agriculture that has made us one of the 100 largest Ag Banks in the United States.

If the quality of your future depends upon the quality of support provided by your bank, call on First Dakota. We know farming, we know agri-business, and we want to know you!

OUR FIRST PRIORITY

It's you. It's understanding your needs and doing whatever we can to meet those needs. Our Ag Finance Team works with you, as a partner in your financial progress.

Because our team of professionals know the Ag industry, we can help you meet needs and seize opportunities as they arise.

THE FAMILY FARM

Values... hard work... commitment. These words describe the foundation that is the family farm. From the earliest days on the prairie to current high-tech farming practices, the family farm has established the United States as the 'bread basket of the world.'

First Dakota is honored to have been a partner with the family farm since 1872 and we look to the future with comprehensive trust and estate planning function to ensure the smooth transition of the family farm from generation to generation.

SERVING AGRI-BUSINESS

The farmer/agri-business network in this area may well be the strongest in our nation. Our Ag Finance Team is familiar with the complexity of agri-business management, and are specialists in providing the kind of support that will preserve our strong position in the industry.
